REDGRAVE LLP HONORED WITH TOP CHAMBERS RANKINGS FOR E-DISCOVERY LITIGATION

WASHINGTON, D.C. – June 6, 2016 – Redgrave LLP is honored to announce that both Jonathan Redgrave and Kevin Brady are recognized as leading lawyers for nationwide e-Discovery litigation in the Chambers USA 2016 guide. Redgrave LLP is the only firm to have more than one individual ranked in the first two bands for the nationwide e-Discovery litigation category. “It’s an honor for the firm and its lawyers to be recognized by this prestigious publication,” said Victoria Redgrave, Managing Partner at Redgrave LLP. “Our consistent rankings in the top tiers of Chambers demonstrate the firm’s excellence and leadership in providing clients with outstanding legal and client service.”

Below are additional details regarding the Chambers recognitions:

- Jonathan M. Redgrave – Litigation: E-Discovery – Nationwide (Band 1)
 - Since the inception of the Litigation: E-Discovery Nationwide category, Jonathan, who according to Chambers “enjoys a position at the pinnacle of the e-Discovery Bar in the USA,” is consistently ranked Band 1 in this category. Clients describe Jonathan as “very technically adept” and comment that he “does an excellent job of making himself aware of broader issues in e-Discovery matters.” Chambers adds that Jonathan “offers highly sophisticated multinational clients a great depth of experience and counsel on discovery issues in compliance and litigation.”

- Kevin F. Brady – Litigation: E-Discovery – Nationwide (Band 2)
 - For the seventh consecutive year in a row, Kevin is ranked in the top tiers of the nationwide e-Discovery litigation category. Chambers specifically notes that Kevin “offers clients decades of experience handling complex litigation proceedings in both state and federal courts.” In addition, Chambers highlights that “he is well known for his high-quality structuring of e-discovery procedures during litigation.”

About Chambers & Partners

Chambers & Partners is a publication based in London that has been ranking and producing internationally recognized guides to the legal profession since 1990 and now covers 185 jurisdictions across the globe. To assemble its annual guide for the U.S. legal market, Chambers conducted thousands of interviews with private practice attorneys and sophisticated end-users of legal services. Their methodology and selection process is determined by the qualities most valued by clients, which include technical legal ability, professional conduct, client service, commercial awareness, diligence, and commitment. The rankings and editorial comments about attorneys are independent, reflecting excellence in key practice areas and notable achievements over the past 12 months including outstanding work, impressive strategic growth and superiority in client service.
