The 6th Annual TSCI Program and The Hon. David Waxse's Article On Cooperation—What Is It And Why Do It

Last week's 6th Annual Sedona Conference® Institute Program on Staying Ahead of the eDiscovery Curve in St. Louis involved an all-star faculty including: Hon. David Waxse, Jerone English, Jonathan Palmer, Hon. Audrey Fleissig, Sherry Harris, Patrick Oot, Dena Sharp, Jennifer Young, Ralph Losey, Paul Burns, Monica Wiseman Latin, Hon. Scott Bales, Hon. Peter Flynn, Hon. Nan R. Nolan, William C.E. Robinson, Kenneth Withers and Redgrave LLP's Jonathan Redgrave.

David Waxse, recently authored a law review article on Cooperation. Published in Volume XVIII, Issue 3 of the Richmond Journal of Law & Technology, the article provides a good overview of the judicial perspective on cooperation and why judges expect counsel to embrace it. While many attorneys may disagree on the contours of what cooperation means in practice, there is no doubt that parties and counsel alike need to understand judicial expectations to be able to best address discovery issues going forward. A copy of the article is available here: <http://jolt.richmond.edu/v18i3/article8.pdf>.
